Dark Dwarfs – Or How Humans Are So Retarded They Invented Fake Stars to Explain Their Retarded Theories

Mainstream science's hypothesis for dark matter is that it's a substance. This flawed premise leads to a chain of flawed conclusions. The concept of "dark dwarfs" is a logical extension of this flawed theory. They are a theoretical object born from a flawed understanding of the universe's true nature.

In my framework, dark matter is not a substance but a magnetic field, the "shrapnel" of the original siphoning event. Therefore, a "dark dwarf" cannot exist.

This is a testament to the superiority of my new reality. The old system was so flawed that it created a universe filled with theoretical objects that couldn't possibly exist.